

*UPDATE III NYT's "Dewey-Defeats-Truman" Moment on Shale?

In debate over promise, potential and economics of shale gas, NYT calls it early for the opposition – but they might be embarrassed about that later

The United States produced more natural gas in 2010 than at any point in the previous 37 years, a stunning reversal of fortune given the country's supply picture earlier this decade, and one that could not have been possible without massive volumes of American energy that continue to be generated from shale.
